The "Link"

KlingStubbins awarded IIDA "2008 People's Choice Award"

PHILADELPHIA, PA – July 29, 2008 – KlingStubbins Interiors was the recipient of a "2008 People's Choice Award" given by the International Interior Design Association (IIDA) Philadelphia City Center at their recent awards ceremony. This honor was in recognition of KlingStubbins' innovative design for Avery Dennison's new 240,000-SF headquarters facility in Mentor, Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland.

Avery Dennison challenged the design team to create a state-of-the-art facility for their administrative, product research, and pilot testing programs, with the goals to increase productivity and communication and to maximize customer partnering. In response, KlingStubbins conceived a central "public" space that links the research, testing, and administrative functions. This 'Link' acts as the heart of the company, fostering a sense of community and hospitality. It contains the main reception, meeting areas, a coffee bar, a full service cafeteria, and a multifunction meeting room large enough to hold "town meetings" and community functions.

KlingStubbins' case study of Avery Dennison, "Breaking Down Barriers: Making Corporate America Collaborative," was featured at NeoCon this year.
