FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Janet R. White, FAIA, named Principal, Director of Government Projects, Washington, DC, office of KlingStubbins

WASHINGTON, DC – August 27, 2010 – KlingStubbins is pleased to announce that it has appointed Janet R. White, FAIA, LEED AP, as Director responsible for Federal Government work in the firm's Washington, DC, office.

Ms. White has national and global experience designing and managing complex building projects in the federal and private sectors. Formerly the chair of the Missouri Architects Board, her experience as regulator, administrator, educator, and practitioner includes The American Institute of Architects, Washington University in St. Louis, a global engineering and construction company, and a national design firm. Her leadership positions in practice, government, associations, and education have produced significant state-of-the-art project work and innovative programs. As principal-in-charge, her recent projects include the new U.S. Embassy in Bujumbura, Burundi and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development Headquarters energy savings performance contract. She collaboratively authored the NCARB Prize and the NCEES Award programs, the Architectural Doctorate Program at the University of Hawaii, and created the AIA online continuing education program. Ms. White has received awards, honors, and grants for exemplary contributions in practice, education, and service to the profession. Currently she serves as chair of the AIA/DC Fellows Committee, reviewer/auditor for USGBC, and was recently appointed by AIA President George Miller, FAIA, to serve on the Department of State, Overseas Buildings Operations Industry Advisory Panel for the 2010-2011 term.
